BIO

Juan D Harris was born in Chattanooga Tennessee in March 14th of 1967. He is the oldest of three siblings. He spent most of his younger days playing with the neighborhood kids and hiking in the hills and mountains of Chattanooga. He actively played all sports and played football in his younger junior high school years. He was voted as president of his junior high school class. He was also recognized by the governor of Tennessee as a future leader in America. After he graduated in the top ten of his graduating class, he left Tennessee after graduation and entered college at DeVry University. He went to DeVry and majored in Electronic Engineering. He also became a member of Kappa Alpha Psi fraternity. He would later transfer to Georgia State University and received an Associate degree in Engineering while working as a manager of Comcast in Tech Ops. He left Comcast and began a career at AT&T as Voice Network Engineer. He is still currently working at AT&T as a Sr. Network Consultant Engineer. He is a divorced father but he has been blessed to have joint custody of his very active 11-year-old daughter. He uses all his spare time at his daughter's school as the president of the PTA and All Pro Dad organizations. He also completed his BAS degree in Computer Networking and Management from Clayton State University.
